To Whom It May Concern,

It is my pleasure to recommend Taylor Fox, an exceptional educator, curriculum designer, and performing arts leader whose academic rigor, professionalism, and student-centered approach makes her a strong candidate for advanced roles in the education sector. I have observed Taylor's instructional style that is both developmentally appropriate and engaging. Students and staff are drawn to Taylor's innovative teaching and instructional style. Leading staff development, Taylor has presented meaningful presentations and has developed scalable, standards-aligned curricula adopted across programs, improving enrollment, retention, and academic rigor.

With more than eight years of experience, Taylor has taught AP World History, AP United States History, AP European History, AP Psychology, English, Music, and Drama. Taylor's strengths include designing courses with high cognitive flexibility that engage strategic thinking and connection to real-life; Taylor is a program builder and academic architect. Most notably, Taylor designed and took on the leadership of creating a new course "Digital Music" as a brand-new, UC-approved VAPA course, demonstrating innovation, initiative, and a strong understanding of standards alignment.

In addition to her academic expertise, Taylor brings an extensive background in theater performance and music education. Taylor has managed more than ten full-length musical productions in both school-based and youth theater programs. Taylor engages all stakeholders, community partnerships, parents, students and staff. In addition to managing strict time lines and budgets, Taylor is a director, manager and a master at creating academic and artistic masterpieces that impact school retention, academic success and student wellness.

Taylor is prepared for leadership roles requiring strategic thinking, instructional excellence, and organizational influence. I recommend Taylor Fox without reservation. Taylor has my highest recommendation.

Respectfully,

Jennifer J. Dean, M.Ed.
